Sniper Shoots Into Group Of Worshipers

NEW YORK, May 7 (U.P.) — The chief suspect in the sniper shooting Saturday which killed a church warden and wounded five other persons surrendered to authorities today.

Tony Tudorache, 60, a former employee of the Romanian Orthodox Church of St. Dumitru where the shootings occurred, came voluntarily to the district attorney's office and told a detective: "I understand I'm wanted for questioning."

He was immediately taken to an interrogation room to be asked about the shootings which some investigators believed was an apparent attempt to assassinate former Romanian Princess Ileana, sister of the late King Carol.

Princess Ileana narrowly missed being struck by the bullets which scattered a crowd of 400 worshipers as they gathered Saturday for a midnight candlelight procession at the church.

Police said the shots were fired from Tudorache's room, located diagonally opposite the church.

Detectives found a .30 caliber rifle and matching expended shells and boxes of cartridges in his tiny room which overlooked the church in a residential section west of Central Park.

Florian Gaidau, 53, pastor of the church, a refugee from Romania, said he believed the gunman was a "trained agent" of the Communists who had been sent to the church to make trouble.

Chief of Detectives James B. Leggett discounted the rumors of Communist plot against the life of Ileana, 47-year old aunt of deposed King Michael of Romania, daughter of the late Queen Marie of Romania and former wife of Archduke Anton of Austria.

We know nothing to give substance to the report that the man was a Communist," Leggett told reporters.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 7 (U.P.) — A bill to give the name of "Barkley Dam" to the dam to be constructed on the lower Cumberland river near Kuttawa and to call the reservoir it will create "Lake Barkley" was introduced in the Senate today by Sen. C. Clements of Kentucky.

The measure would pay this tribute to the late Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, who died last Monday.

"It is very appropriate that this project bear the name of Senator Barkley, for he has been in the forefront of those who have been working to make it possible," Senator Clements said.

"Senator Barkley and I have worked together in the Senate to secure funds for the planning of this great dam and we have been together at this session to secure the first appropriations to start its construction."

Senator Clements recalled that it was proposed that the great TVA Kentucky Dam on the lower Tennessee be named in honor of Senator Barkley which it was completed in 1945, but that Barkley had insisted that no living man should receive such a tribute.

The dam is to be built by the Corps of Engineers. Senators Clements and Barkley announced early this year that they would press for a minimum of $1,300,000 at this session to complete its planning and start construction next spring.

Departmental chairmen installed were Mrs. G. B. Scott, Alpha; Mrs. Cook Sanders, Delta; Mrs. E. S. Ferguson, Gamma; Mrs. Nix Crawford, Home; Mrs. John Pasco, Music; Mrs. Charles D. Clark, Zeta; Mrs. V. E. Windsor, Creative Arts; Mrs. A. G. Wilson, Sigma.

Single Service To Be Held For Five

INDIANAPOLIS, Pa., May 7 (U.P.) — A single funeral service will be held Wednesday for a man and four youngsters who drowned when a small boat capsized in a small bay near here.

The boat owner, Eugene Fairman, 32, of Creekside RD 1, had taken the children for a ride while testing a new outboard motor Saturday in the 20-foot deep lake.

He died with his son, Donald, 8; Robert Lee Burns, 17; Edna Mae Burns, 13, and Charlene Burns, 8. The Burns children were brother and sister of Fairman's wife.

Two other children, Ernest Burns, 11, and Connie Fairman, 6, clung to the overturned craft for nearly three hours before they were rescued by firemen. Mrs. Fairman sounded the alarm when her husband failed to return home by 10 p.m. to get ready to go to work on the night shift at a coal mine.

She ran to the lake, which is about a half mile from the Fairman and Burns homes, and heard Ernest shouting. He called, "They're all drowned."

"Later Ernest said, 'Uncle Gene tried to save them, that's how he drowned. I knew they were drowning. I could see the bubbles coming up. But there wasn't anything I could do but help Connie stay on.' Ernest could give no reason why the boat overturned, because 'it came so quick.' State police said the flat-bottomed boat may have been overloaded.

The lake, on the farm of Dale Souverein, is about 120 feet long and 80 feet wide. County Detective Roy Schreengost said the boat capsized in the middle of the pond.

President Should Have Acted, Howard

LOUISVILLE, May 7 (U.P.) — Dr. T. R. M. Howard, Mount Vernon, Miss., said Sunday that President Eisenhower should have ordered federal troops to Mississippi after a 14-year-old Chicago Negro was found dead there last year.

Dr. Howard, president of the Mississippi Regional Council of Negro Leadership, spoke to an audience of 400 Negroes at Zion Baptist Church here.

He said he "sheltered four eyewitnesses to the murder of 'Emmett Till,' the Negro boy whose body was found in a river in Mississippi last year. Two white men accused of the boy's murder were acquitted."

Howard said the president should have sent an ultimatum to Mississippi after Till's death, and if that failed to get the state to accept integration, he suggested that federal funds earmarked for Mississippi should have been cut off.

Arthur Shores, Birmingham, attorney for Autherine Lucy, Negro co-ed whose attempt to enter the University of Alabama led to riots there, also spoke here.

Shores, who also is counsel for the Montgomery, Ala. bus boycotters, spoke against "gradualism" in integration. "The Negro in Alabama has longer frightened," Shores said. "It is the people clinging to the vestiges of the past who are frightened."

Opportunities Are Great Today Clements Tells Class

The graduates of today have more opportunity and greater opportunities than any graduates of any preceding year, Senator Earle C. Clements told the Faxon graduating class last night.

Senator Clements spoke before the twenty nine graduating students from Faxon and a filled auditorium at the school.

Mr. Clements reminded his large audience of the class predictions that are made each year by graduating classes and said that he would like to make the prediction that the 1956 class is the most likely to succeed.

The reason for this prediction, he said, is because today opportunity not only knocks at the door once, but many times. "Opportunity knocks at the door and rattles at the windows," he told his audience.

New frontiers are open on every front today, he said, in science, agriculture, communications, business, arts, and many others.

Mr. Clements said that the 1956 class would live to see the day that other space was conquered. Next year, he reminded them, a satellite would be sent out into space to begin this new phase of man's work.

He told the class and the packed auditorium that peace time use of atomic power would aid agriculture. Disease free seeds are being produced by use of atomic radiation, he said. The farmer of tomorrow will have to grow twice as much on half the land, he said.

Better insecticides are on the way to further aid the farmer, he continued.

Senator Clements pointed out the various fields of endeavor and told how each of them needed trained people to carry on the work.

He emphasized how important the conservation of water in Kentucky was. The state will grow in ratio to its ability to conserve and develop its water resources, he said.

All the United States has today and all it will have tomorrow, he said, is due to what we believe in. We must put moral and spiritual values ahead of our material thinking, he told the students.

"We must not let our pride of ownership excite our desire for freedom," Mr. Clements continued. "We must not let the 'Cadillac' and the 'mink coat' take the place of the Cross and the Bible."

Mr. Clements attempted to show the students that one man can make a difference and that one man can change things.

He alluded to the late Senator Barkley and told how he was born in a small town with practically no opportunities. Barkley knew that the key to success was to obtain an education. Senator Clements said, and he set about to get this education.

Barkley rose from a country boy in a very small town to vice president of the United States, Clements said, which proves that opportunity was available to a person who worked for it.

New Plane Is Announced

WASHINGTON, May 7 (U.P.) — The Air Force has a new plane which flies at 10-mile altitudes "as a matter of routine." The plane may prove valuable in detecting Russian nuclear tests.

Dr. Hugh L. Dryden, director of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, disclosed the plane's development Sunday in announcing a new assault on the problems of high-altitude flight.

Dryden said that while only a few military planes now operate above 50,000 feet, such altitudes will be routine for the jet passenger transports and military combat planes of the future.

He said the new research program was made possible by development of the Air Force plane, dubbed the Lockheed U-2.

The plane, which has a big wing to give it necessary "lift" in the thin air, is powered by a J-57 jet engine and has a speed of about 500 miles an hour.

Experts believed Dryden's cautiously-worded announcement also indicated the plane can be used to scoop up airborne dust particles and thereby detect atomic explosions overseas.

The opportunities that exist today are far greater than in the time of Senator Barkley, he reminded his audience.

He lauded Senator Barkley and said that his success was not due to his material possession, but to the spiritual values he held before him. He realized, he said, that a man takes nothing with him of material value, but that only a well spent life can follow him.

Senator Clements concluded his address with the remark that the class will have good luck if they believe "that one man can make a difference."

He was introduced by Charlie Lassiter, principal of Faxon School. Lassiter in his introduction, compared Mr. Clements with Mr. Barkley.

Rev. Norman Culpepper gave the invocation, urging both students and parents to have an upward look, an inward look, an outward look, and an onward look.

Miss Judy Clark gave a vocal solo and Randy Patterson gave a welcome to the guests and parents. A group of students rendered two vocal selections. Mrs. Charlie Lassiter played the processional and the recessional.

H-Bomb Drop Postponed

By JOSEPH L. MYLER United Press Staff Correspondent ABOARD USS MT. MCKINLEY AT ENIWETOK, Tuesday, May 7 (U.P.) — Atomic officials have postponed for the second time the explosion of America's first air-dropped hydrogen bomb.

Officials announced last Monday that the explosion has now been tentatively scheduled for early Thursday morning (early Wednesday afternoon EDT). However, they had no assurance the weather will be any better by then.

The bomb was originally scheduled for firing today but unfavorable winds forced tests officials to postpone it first until Wednesday.

Officials said "unfavorable northerly winds at practically all altitudes" forced the new postponement. If the big bomb were exploded under such conditions, it would mean the atoms south of Bikini would be dusted with dangerous radioactive fallout.

Less Fallout Expected Dr. William E. Ogle, acting deputy commander of the test task force for scientific matters, said the air burst will not create fallout comparable to the deadly chemicals spread by the big surface explosion of March 1, 1954.

But even so, officials were determined to take no chances. They want to be sure that upper air currents will carry any fallout safely to sea.

The air-dropped H-bomb will not have the awesome "earthquake" effect of the 1954 H-bomb. It will be exploded from 10,000 feet and will transmit little nuclear violence to the ground in the form of radioactive waves.

Tour Of Site Reporters covering this year's atomic tests learned of the earthquake effect in a tour of old and new H-bomb test sites in the atomic proving grounds.

They learned that medium-sized H-bomb exploded high in the air can inflict enough blast damage on brick homes 12 miles from the explosion to kill 85 per cent of the occupants.

But the newly disclosed effects of the big surface explosion of March, 1954, show that a ground burst could wreck homes with an earthquake shock at least 20 miles from the target area.

Thus, it appears that man now can wreck his cities at will with artificial earthquakes. Fired in the heart of a target city, the H-bomb can demolish ordinary brick homes in distant suburbs.

Yanks Knock Off Key Contenders

By FRED DOWN

United Press Staff Writer

The New York Yankees are up to an old trick that pays off in pennants — they're knocking off the key contenders themselves.

The Yankees, who claim they started the "do it yourself" fad 20 years ago, showed the season's largest crowd Sunday why they're the perennial American League champions by handing the Chicago White Sox a pair of 4-0 setbacks.

In the process, the Yankees extended their first-place lead to 2 1/2 games and the White Sox' string of scoreless innings to 20.

Ed "Whitey" Ford breezed to his fourth straight victory with an eight-hitter in the first game and then southpaw Rip Coleman and veteran relief specialist Jim Konstanty collaborated in another eight-hit performance in the nightcap. The shutouts were the first by Yankee pitchers this year.

Eighth Berra Homer

Yogi Berra hit his eighth homer and Hank Bauer his sixth to spark the Yankees' 12-hit attack in the first game while shortstop Gil McDougald walloped a key second-inning triple in the second game.

Jack Harshman and Harry Byrd suffered the defeats for the White Sox, who have lost five of their last six games to drop back to the 500 mark.

The Kansas City Athletics pounded out 29 hits to beat the Washington Senators, 10-7 and 13-3, and the Baltimore Orioles downed the Detroit Tigers, 6-2 and 4-3, in other A. L. games.

Cleveland at Boston was rained out.

Harry Simpson drove in four runs with a homer and triple to lead the Athletics' 13-hit attack in the opener while Gus Zernial hit two homers and Johnny Groh and Hector Lopez one each in the nightcap.

Relief pitchers Bill Harington and Ed Burdick picked up the decisions.

Relief pitcher George Zuverink finished both games for the Orioles, whose double win dropped the Tigers into the cellar. Gus Triandos' three-run homer was the big blow for the Orioles in the first game and an error by shortstop Harvey Kuiper led to their winning run in the second game.

Redlegs Win Two

In the National League, those hard-hitting Cincinnati Reds climbed to within 20 points of first place when they clubbed the Philadelphia Phillies, 10-2 and 11-9.

The Redlegs hit five round-trippers Sunday, Ted Kluszewski and Gus Bell homering in each game and Homer Smith and Ed Ricketts hitting homers in the first game. The hapless Phillies now have dropped five straight and nine of their last 11.

Dusty Rhodes singled home the winning run in the ninth inning as the New York Giants scored a 3-4 victory after Stan Musial's eighth inning homer won the opener for the St. Louis Cardinals by the same score. Ron Kline pitched a six-hitter to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 2-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs and the teams played a 6-6 tie in a second game halted after seven innings by darkness.

Brooklyn at Milwaukee was rained out.

Pikeville On Probation

LEXINGTON — Kentucky High School Athletic Commissioner Ted Sanford announced Wednesday that Pikeville High School has been placed on probation until the end of the 1956-57 basketball season.

The action was an outgrowth of events at the 15th Regional Tournament at Pikeville last March 10.

Sanford said specific charges against Pikeville were: that Pikeville fans threw debris on the playing floor when fouls were called against their team; that official Mildred Wells was verbally abused by the wife of a Pikeville faculty member; that the public address announcer apparently displayed a partisan attitude toward the game and that several Pikeville fans made derogatory remarks outside the officials' dressing room after the game.

Pops Own Corn And Takes To The Movies

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS

United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Picture a movie star popping his own corn and running to the flicker-house to eat it.

That's what handsome, athletic Paul Newman loves to do. We popped up a couple of sackfuls and then went to see his latest picture—MGM's "The Rack."

It has a lot to do with prisoners at war. Paul is cast in the role of the traitor. He sweats through the tortures of the damned and, of course, winds up a hero.

Young Paul is indeed a remarkable character. In the short span of 12 months, he has scaled the heights in the movies, on Broadway and in television. But he's still as American as apple butter.

He answered the knock on the door of his hotel suite with a country style "howdy" and said sit down. We sat. After the corn was buttered and salted, we saw the picture.

Making Rocky Picture

Later we got talking about another film he's making—a picture about the life of Rocky Graziano.

"It was a little rough," said the brown-haired six-footer. "I never did much boxing, although I had wrestled a little."

The directors of the picture, which could, and may be titled "Rockabye Baby," put the young man through an obstacle course.

"They had me in sweat clothes, running mile after mile. They had a couple of professional middleweight box-fighters giving me lessons in the manly art," he said.

"In the training before the camera shooting Paul and his 'sparring mates' used 10 ounce gloves. While they were making one of the first jabs simulatively the second bout between Rocky Graziano and Tony Zale, back there a few years in Chicago, Paul forgot himself."

"I had been taught how to jerk my shoulder to give the effect that I had landed a solid blow," Paul said. "I got a little careless and cut loose. I accidentally damaged the guy who was playing Tony Zale. I hated myself for it."

Got Injured Too

Paul didn't come out of it without some injury, however. They switched from the "pillows" to the 6-ounce gloves and the hero of the piece, damaged a tendon in his good right hand.

Studio Club Observes Anniversary

By ALINE MOSBY

United Press Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — A group of actresses, singers and dancers are hammering nails into scenery and writing songs to celebrate the 40th anniversary of one of Hollywood's famed institutions — the Studio Club.

The club, a colorful home for young girls who are working at or in show business, first rang up its curtain in 1916. Usually the anniversaries go unsung. But this year the 94 beauties who live in the Spanish-style house are putting on their own show in the club theater for talent scouts, proud parents and boy friends.

"Two friends of the girl, wrote the show and now we're working on a plot to get a new curtain before opening night," smiled Florence Williams, the club director, as she showed me around the place.

The Studio Club is a sort of show business sorority house that boasts such alumnae as Marilyn Monroe, Kim Novak (she just moved out into her own apartment) Donna Reed, Evelyn Keyes, Gale Storm, Rita Moreno and Linda Darnell.

"Stage Door" Scenes

Walking through the club is like watching scenes from the play "Stage Door." In the lobby you see boy friends waiting for their dates to trip down from upstairs. When Rita Moreno lived there many girls would find an excuse to pick up their mail so they could smile at her waiting date, Marion Brand.

Upstairs you hear girls practicing voice and piano in the music rooms. A girl who wants to be a bullfighter twirls a cape in the patio. And in the club theater a group of beauties in blue jeans rehearse dance numbers for the May 14 anniversary show—called "Hollywood 5-3106" after the club's phone number.

This haven for hopefuls was launched by a group of young actresses, including Zasu Pitts, who were living in unfriendly hotel rooms and reading plays together in the basement of a public library. The YWCA sponsored their plan for a home, and the club still is a part of that national organization. A room and two meals at the club costs from $16.50 to $20.50 weekly.

Most Glamorous "Y"

In the early days such actresses as Norma Talmadge and Constance Bennett exercised in the club gym in black bloomers and middie blouses. Today it's the most glamorous "Y" in the country — with a scrap book of alumna photographs that looks like a movie magazine.

"The majority of our girls decide show business is not for them and get married, Miss Williams smiled.

"But others keep going. Marilyn Monroe was very quiet and shy when she lived here.

"And we are very proud of Kim

Novak. She just loved the club. She would go to New York and stay in a five-room suite at the Sherry-Netherland Hotel. But she was always glad to get home to her tiny room here. The club helped Kim keep her feet on the ground."

There are about 221,000 miles of railway line in the United States, not including mileage of yard tracks or sidings or parallel track-ages.

CHAPTER 27
VAL ROSE sharply. She rested trembling hands on the Captain's desk, but she didn't look at him. She looked toward Bruce. "You can't have said that, Bruce! You can't believe Dirk poisoned Mrs. Featherstone!"
The Captain started noticeably at her addressing Bruce by his first name. Again he asked himself if he had let Harridan persuade him into a course of action that might not only prove embarrassing but dangerous? Could all this fuss conceivably be due to some personal spite on the doctor's part?
"I'm sorry, Nurse," Bruce spoke in the pause and it seemed to her he said a great deal of deliberately, as though to remind her for her use of his Christian name. "But I could only do what I felt was my duty and inform the Captain of all the circumstances of Mrs. Featherstone's death."
"You felt your blasted conscience impelled you to call me a murderer?" Dirk said directly, showing anger for the first time since he had entered the cabin. "And quite apart from the fact that I didn't bump off Aunt May, your action is going to cause everyone a great deal of unpleasantness," he added.
Privately the Captain couldn't have agreed with him more, but should he said severely. "Come, come, Mr. Hanson. No one has accused you of anything yet."
"But until you have your blasted autopsy I'm as good as accused of murder, that's it, eh Captain?" Dirk said explosively. "I haven't suggested such a thing, nor have I any intention of doing so. Whatever happens after the autopsy is entirely a matter for the Jamaican police."
"Apart from the fact that I gave Aunt May some heart pills shortly before she died, is there anything else against me, Captain?"
The Captain scowled down at the notes on the desk. "I'm afraid so, Mr. Hanson. It would seem that a conversation took place in Mrs. Featherstone's cabin shortly before her death, some of

Taxpayers Hit Near Million For Sessions
FRANKFORT, Ky. — The five sessions of the Kentucky General Assembly which ended last Friday cost the state approximately $912,479.
Charles Wheeler, secretary of the Legislative Research Commission, compiled the figures on the Legislature's cost today and released them to the press.
Of this sum, $369,375 was spent for the salaries of the lawmakers. Another $148,020 went for daily expenses of the 139 legislators. Each individual legislator received at least $4,000 in salary and expenses, plus a travel allowance of 15 cents per mile for one round trip to the capital each session.
The members each drew a salary of $25 per calendar day of the session, and an additional $10 per day for expenses. Lt. Gov. Harry Lee Waterfield and House Speaker Thomas P. Fitzpatrick (D-Kenton), each received an additional $10 per day as presiding officers.
An added $34,750 for stationery and $26,239 for traveling expenses was paid out to the legislators during the 109 days of the five sessions. The allowance for stationery is set at $50 per legislator for each of the sessions — one regular session and four special sessions.
Of the travel allowances, the largest was drawn by Rep. Roy Davis (D-Ballard-Carlisle) who lives 239 miles from Frankfort. Rep. Alton Moore (D-Franklin), is the only member who drew no travel allowance.
Waterfield received a travel allowance of $453.50 for the 309 miles he covered from his home at Clinton. The farthest that any senator traveled was the 287 miles from Mayfield, the home of Sen. Wayne Freeman.
The cost of clerical and other legislative help for the five sessions, plus preparation and printing of bills and such work done by the Legislative Research Commission, accounted for most of the remainder of the sum spent.
A total of $84,700 was appropriated for the General Assembly in the 1954-1956 budget and several subsequent emergency appropriations. There is $29,200 remaining in the legislative fund from the appropriated expense fund.
Further information, bidding proposal, et cetera, will be furnished upon application to the Frankfort Office. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids. Frankfort, Ky., May 3, 1956. Department of Highways

Search For Oil Is On
By PETER WEBB
United Press Staff Correspondent
CAIRO — The world's most extensive search for oil is taking place in the Egyptian desert over one of the most famous battlefields of World War II—El Alamein.
It is a dangerous search because one false step means sudden death. There are still nearly 6 million landmines, bodytraps and unexploded shells littering the area where Britain's "Desert Rats" and Rommel's Afrika Korps fought.
But underneath could be one of the world's richest oil fields. Its discovery would change the economic face of Egypt and drastically affect her policy toward both Russia and the Western world.
The search is being conducted by the American-owned Sahara Petroleum Co., representing four of the biggest United States oil concerns—the Continental Oil Co., the Ohio Oil Company, Cities Service Company and the Richfield Oil Corporation.
Already they have ploughed nearly 20 million dollars into an exploration which extends over 90,000 square miles from the Nile to Libya. No oil has been found yet but research has confirmed the presence of rock formations which could contain oil deposits comparable to the other great Mideast fields.
The search was described by one company official as the "most intensive ever carried out in the Mideast fields."
Two legislative investigating committees created by the regular session of the General Assembly cost a total of nearly $20,000. The committee investigating state welfare institutions under Sen. George E. Overby (D-Murray) spent a total of $11,363. The insurance investigating committee under the chairmanship of Sen. Leon J. Shaikun (D-Louisville), spent a total of $8,192.

CHAPTER 27
VAL ROSE sharply. She rested trembling hands on the Captain's desk, but she didn't look at him. She looked toward Bruce. "You can't have said that, Bruce! You can't believe Dirk poisoned Mrs. Featherstone!"
The Captain started noticeably at her addressing Bruce by his first name. Again he asked himself if he had let Harridan persuade him into a course of action that might not only prove embarrassing but dangerous? Could all this fuss conceivably be due to some personal spite on the doctor's part?
"I'm sorry, Nurse," Bruce spoke in the pause and it seemed to her he said a great deal of deliberately, as though to remind her for her use of his Christian name. "But I could only do what I felt was my duty and inform the Captain of all the circumstances of Mrs. Featherstone's death."
"You felt your blasted conscience impelled you to call me a murderer?" Dirk said directly, showing anger for the first time since he had entered the cabin. "And quite apart from the fact that I didn't bump off Aunt May, your action is going to cause everyone a great deal of unpleasantness," he added.
Privately the Captain couldn't have agreed with him more, but should he said severely. "Come, come, Mr. Hanson. No one has accused you of anything yet."
"But until you have your blasted autopsy I'm as good as accused of murder, that's it, eh Captain?" Dirk said explosively. "I haven't suggested such a thing, nor have I any intention of doing so. Whatever happens after the autopsy is entirely a matter for the Jamaican police."
"Apart from the fact that I gave Aunt May some heart pills shortly before she died, is there anything else against me, Captain?"
The Captain scowled down at the notes on the desk. "I'm afraid so, Mr. Hanson. It would seem that a conversation took place in Mrs. Featherstone's cabin shortly before her death, some of

Franco Lays Down Firm Policy

By CHARLES M. McCANN

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer seems to have succeeded in calming Allied fears that he might start direct negotiations with Russia on German unity.

But the Allies — the United States, Great Britain and France — have not succeeded in calming Adenauer's fears that they might make some agreement with the Kremlin that would harden his country's division.

This question of German unification lies in the background of every conference the Allies hold with Russia or hold among themselves.

To Adenauer and his fellow Germans, it is naturally the biggest European question.

West German Foreign Minister Heinrich Brentano announced on April 13 that Wilhelm Haas, Adenauer's ambassador to Russia, had been instructed to take up the unification question with the Kremlin.

That naturally caused something of a sensation in Allied capitals. Anxiety arose at once that Adenauer might make a private deal which would weaken West Germany's ties with its mellow members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Adenauer has since made it plain that he simply wants to keep the unification question fully alive, and that he means to keep it alive in the minds of the Big Three Western allies as well as the Russians.

Adenauer said in a speech last Thursday at a meeting of his Christian Democratic Party that he remains as always distrustful of Russia.

The downgrading of Josef Stalin, he said, does not mean a change in the Communist goal of world domination.

"We are faced, as before, with a power block that seeks its own goals with a new and perhaps more dangerous set of tactics," he said.

But he also showed his fear of an Allied deal with the Kremlin by sending Foreign Minister Brentano to London this week.

Discuss Soviet Visit
Brentano went to discuss with Prime Minister Anthony Eden and Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd the recent visit to Britain of Soviet Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin and Communist Party Chief Nikita S. Khrushchev.

Adenauer wanted to make sure that Britain had not and would not do anything at all to prejudice eventual German unification.

Brentano will be in Paris today to attend the meeting of foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Alliance. He has arranged meetings

Two For One Split Announced By Company

MINNEAPOLIS — Shareholders of Investors Mutual, Inc. and Investors Stock Fund, Inc., mutual fund affiliates of Investors Diversified Services, Inc., at their respective annual stockholders' meetings held yesterday in the Investors Building, Minneapolis, Minnesota, voted in favor of a two-for-one split of the outstanding shares of each company.

The value of each shareholder's investment and his proportionate interest in his fund's assets and earnings remain unchanged by these actions. The par value of the shares of each company is reduced from $1 to $.50 and the number of the outstanding shares of each fund is doubled.

After the split effective at the close of business on April 26, 1956, the outstanding shares of Investors Mutual, Inc. will be approximately 100,000,000 shares and those of Investors Stock Fund, Inc. will be about 12,000,000 shares.

The Directors of Investors Stock Fund, Inc. have declared a regular first with French Premier Guy Mollet and Foreign Minister Christian Pineau, then with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

In both talks, Brentano's first concern will be to emphasize the paramount importance to West Germany of the unification issue.

Adenauer has since made it plain that he simply wants to keep the unification question fully alive, and that he means to keep it alive in the minds of the Big Three Western allies as well as the Russians.

quarterly dividend of 10 1/2 cents per share, payable May 10 to shareholders of record April 26, 1956. Harold K. Bradford, president of the fund, announced today. The amount of this dividend reflects the two-for-one split of the shares of Investors Stock Fund, Inc.
